Faithful and enjoyable computer version of the classic board game. Good job, guys.. This is a very good adaptation of the board version. In my opinion its really well spent money.. steam on steam, well that won't be confusing.

if you dont like reading there is a video at the end

This is a game about transporting goods over train tracks from one city to another, where upon arrival of the good you can choose the reap the money or gain victory points. the maps are 10 turns long and can support up to 5 players. The game is fun to play and has a decent ammount of dept but.... and this is a major but... 10 turns feels way to short, you are finally set up and the game is already over kinda short, not only that but you get only 2 MAPS for 10 dollar?! I am sorry but that is way to little for that asking price.

all in aal a decent game bnut the ammount of maps/length of the maps drags it down to not recommended, if they add more/longer maps then I would say go and buy it but if they add 5 dollars for every map then my review stands and that is, dont buy it video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=aUueucYiEhc>. It's like the boardgame, awesome.. edit

"Playable."

Tried to play the tutorial and it was broken. Told me I had to deliver a yellow good from a specific city to a city, but no yellow good was there present, couldn't pass. (edit I may have been playing wrong, the tutorial was not helping me learn.)

Can't add bots to two player multiplayer game, only three player maps available.

When needlessly require a email to play online. Check box for email me more\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665was UNCHECKABLE. (edit, a friend didn't have the same experience, this may have been fixed)

They sure as\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665remembered to pack in the DLC maps. Pay money to play our ported mobile app game. (DLC is still \u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665t, no matter how ubiquitous it becomes)

It's sad, this is a quality board game.

A good adaptation of the board game with pretty good AI. Multiplayer features are very much lacking though and the game needs achievements especially for multiplayer to get more people playing.
Just haven't been able to get a multiplayer game started as of writing this, but the strong AI makes single player worth it.

Edit: I still leave it as thumbs up because it's a fun game to play, BUT, the AI is not very strong once you learn the game's nuances.. Not sure what I thought I was getting into when I bought this. I never played the board game edition, so I didn't have any preconceived notions to disappoint. I found the game a bit too simplistic. You pick a card, lay down a few tracks, level up your train, move a good, the limited AI does the same in the same order and before you know it, the game's over. I'm not really seeing what the lasting appeal is here, but I'm coming from a hardcore strategy gamer's place, not a boardgamer's, so take this with a grain of salt.

The tutorial is garbage and there are no tool tips on anything. So be prepared to actually read the board game's manual and/or watch "Let's Play" Youtube tuts.

While I didn't find anything really "wrong" or offensive about this game, I also just didn't find it very much fun because I got bored so quickly, so I can't recommend it.. Very nice game! Steam on steam... :). Hi, after viewing the developer's response I bought and played the game again. Thankfully I didn't have the same fullscreen bug, not sure what happened before but I'm glad I decided to check on this game again.

I actually already owned this on my tablet, but I prefer it play on my desktop computer. I very much enjoy the game!

Thanks again for the developers in making this, please port more boardgames to Linux!. Very nice game! Steam on steam... :). although i have played 500+ games on my board game copy and to me this is one of the best board games ever, i do not recomend this on Steam or any other devices (purchased it on google Play stoore also) for one reason only:
- there is no community to play it online and the AI is very very limited.

PROS:

- nice game play
- it is Steam (very good reason)

CONS:

- no online games (only asynchronous)
- lack of ppl online even to start an asynchronous game
- ppl drop theirr games in the middle. First time playing the railroad building, economic board game and loving it. Tutorial was short and easy to grasp. A couple playthroughs should help you with the mechanics and get a grasp of the game. Only have played A.I, which are challenging enough for me as noob, but probably a lot easier for veteran players. At the moment, the online player base is slim so wanting to play against real people, "good luck."

Have had a bug issue a couple times of wanting to change my mind and dragged the railroad track back to the supply which froze the game. To avoid this, I recommend hitting the "undo" button instead. Hopefully devs fix this issue soon. Also to note when rotating track pieces, use arrow keys instead of using your mouse; the mouse makes rotation more fiddly.

As for players complaining that the base game only comes with two maps and the dlc maps are too expensive, there seems to be a lot of meat to this game already for a decent asking price. Real board games are not cheap and are a niche market so I see this game as a bargain.

Just need the bugs fixed and hopefully more train enthusiasts. Choo Choo.. As much as I like to see board games being brought to the computer screen this game does not do it well.

The whole product looks unfinished. The whole Interface makes this game feel like you are playing an early alpha of something. Sometimes it is very confusing why the game behaves in a certain way and you have to repeat steps that are not allowed just to be able to read the tooltips.

We played it in Multiplayer and the fact that you cannot even change the volume of ingame sounds made it even harder to play. You cannot add AI to the multiplayer and if you are just 2 players there not many maps you can play on.

From what I see in the game news it does not seem there are new patches coming that make this game enjoyable. Very sad. Got my money refunded.... Not sure what I thought I was getting into when I bought this. I never played the board game edition, so I didn't have any preconceived notions to disappoint. I found the game a bit too simplistic. You pick a card, lay down a few tracks, level up your train, move a good, the limited AI does the same in the same order and before you know it, the game's over. Official Statement:

Dear community,

As You may know, our Steam account has been suspended for an indefinite period of time. We are sincerely apologizing for that inconvenience and for the thing, that has been done by one of our members.

We realize, that it was an unacceptable mistake. Many game developers know, how important the reviews are and how they affect whole Steam system. A failure of reviews sometimes would mean an end for independent companies. This matter is now discussed with Steam authorities in order to find any optimal solution.

Our team will keep working on games like Istanbul (which will be released in June on mobile devices like iOS/Android and we will do our best to release the game on PC/Mac/Linux as well) and improving our previous ones. We hope that our further actions will regain trust of players.

We are taking this situation very seriously, we have learnt a lesson and we are sorry for this.

At the same time, we would like to thank all players who support us.

We hereby inform you that all our games, which were purchased on Steam, are still accessible through your Steam library.

Sincerely Yours,

Acram Digital. Regarding Acram:

We've received a number of reports for Steam review manipulation on the titles Steam: Rails to Riches and Eight-Minute Empire, from Acram Digital. After investigating these reports we have found that the developer, Grzegorz Kubas, has been trying to inflate the user review score for his titles. This is against our policy, and something we take very seriously.

Because of Grzegorz's actions, we have removed all games/DLC developed by Acram from our store, and will no longer be doing business with him. Existing owners will be able to keep their titles.. Golden Train Edition:

We are pleased to announce that Easter promotion is available - a special package: Golden Train Edition, which includes the main application and all the additional maps in one bundle.

There are also some bug fixes:

- fixed bug when rail/city hex tile was dragged out of map's borders from legal position,
- fixed rare bug occurring in multiplayer game, when one of players abandons the game during build tracks phase,
- fixed rare bug that made lack of player's token on rails on expansion maps,
- more minor bug fixes and improvements: tutorial, bidding in basic mode and other.
